

BISHOPS TALK ON THE CHURCH

Episcopal Divines Talk on the Need of an Executive Head of Church.

PLAN IS OPPOSED

Bishop Potter Says the Move Is Ill Advised, and Will Stir Up Sectionalism.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)

New York, Oct. 5.—Shall the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States have an elective "personal head"?

Seven Episcopalian bishops, with dioceses in north middle west, say plainly that the good of the church demands an elective supreme officer, whose executive powers may be gradually increased.

Four others declare themselves "opposed to anything approaching papacy," and deem the present almost honorary office of senior bishop a sufficiently centralized form of government.

Bishop Potter of New York bases the hostility to the suggested innovation on the attendant necessity of dividing the country into ecclesiastical provinces. These expressions of opinion were called forth by the recent editorial in the New York Churchman, an Episcopalian organ, which strongly advocated the establishment of a constitutional and representative personal head of the church.

Ill Advised, Says Potter. Bishop Potter, whose personality and important diocese of New York City gives his words great weight in church circles, says that a measure creating a supreme head of the church would be "ill advised." "He declares himself to be especially opposed to any ecclesiastical move that may stir up sectional feeling in the country."

Bishop Frederick D. Huntington of the diocese of central New York said: "In most respects the church in America corresponds to the church in England, but as for an archbishop, we need none and I hope will never have one."

Meets With Approval. Bishop Thomas U. Dudley of Louisville, Ky., and Bishop James M. Francis of Indianapolis expressed strong approval of the project to give the church a more definite head.

Denial that the question of a "personal head" to the church was a live issue was made by Bishop George D. Gillespie of the diocese of western Michigan.

"This suggestion," said Bishop Gillespie, "has never been seriously considered by the church authorities."

Bishop William A. Leonard of Cleveland termed the present plan of succession to the headship of the church unsatisfactory.

LINE UP AGAINST MILTON TUESDAY

Will Play at Athletic Park—Game with Beloit Saturday in the Line City.

That the Janesville high school eleven will have a chance at some team before the game with Beloit next Saturday is now an assured fact as a game has been planned and definitely settled with the "Knights of the Pigskin" from Milton college.

The play will begin promptly at 5:15 Tuesday afternoon at Athletic park.

Milton Team Heavier. There will not be time sufficient to have new bills printed but as soon as the game becomes known it is believed that a good crowd will turn out as the interest taken in the Whitewater game that did not come off, was considerable.

The Milton college team is thought to be somewhat heavier than 150 pounds which is the average of the Janesville team.

The Present Line-up. The following are the positions which the boys will play in the lineup against Milton tomorrow: C., Caldwell; R. G., Kennedy; R. T.; Atwood; R. E., Clithero; L. G., Carlo; L. A., Locke; L. E., Ryan; C. B., Galbraith; R. H., Flaherty; L. H., Roberts; F. D., Mulmore.

Tackle Beloit on Keep Field. The game with Beloit next Saturday will be on the Keep field and a large delegation of football enthusiasts from the high school and city generally, it is expected, will attend.

Backed Out. A second date with Whitewater may be arranged later but it is thought that the team might have sent word sooner that they did not intend to play, apparently but a few of their team went south with the militia, although some of them were reported on the sick list.

On account of Milton college being an Adventist institution it was necessary to arrange the game during the week as the visiting eleven will not play Saturday.

SOPHOMORES MEET THIS AFTERNOON

Interest Taken in All School Organizations—Freshman Class Large This Year.

Interest in class organizations is becoming general and the selection of all the necessary adjuncts to class life, from presidents to class pins, flowers and yells, is now uppermost in the minds of all at the high school from the voracious freshmen to the stately seniors. The freshman class is a large and enthusiastic one this year. At the meeting Wm. Tallman was elected president. They expect to choose their class pin at the next meeting which will occur sometime next week. The sophomore class will meet this afternoon and select a pin and class yell and meetings of the other classes will be held in the near future.

VERDICT AGAINST THE CONVENT

Milwaukee Girl Is Awarded $8,000 Damages by Canadian Court.

London, Ont., Oct. 5.—Miss Mary Archer, formerly of Milwaukee, who sued the Sacred Heart convent for damages for dismissal from the order and incarceration in an asylum on the ground of insanity, and also for remuneration for seventeen years' services, has been awarded $8,000 damages, $3,000 for wages and $5,000 for wrongful dismissal after her liberation from the asylum. The verdict of the jury was cheered in court.

ANARCHISTS BATTLE WITH SOCIALISTS

Fifteen Rabid Reformers Endeavor to Break Up Meeting of Less Radical Clan and Shooting Results.

Barre, Vt., Oct. 5.—In a fight between anarchists and socialists here one man was fatally and another seriously wounded. The man suspected of doing the shooting is under arrest. The feeling between the two parties has been intense for many months, and conflicts more or less serious have been of almost daily occurrence.

A number of anarchists attempted to break up a meeting of socialists and precipitated a fight, during which, it is alleged, Alexander Garretto fired three shots from a revolver, wounding Eli Corti and Emilio Vochini. Corti, it is said, will die.

Dr. Giacinto Menotti Sereatt, editor of the socialist newspaper published in New York, had been invited to address local socialists, some fifty of whom congregated in Socialists' hall. While the audience was awaiting the arrival of the speaker fifteen anarchists, headed by Corti, made their appearance at the hall, and declared they would not permit Sereatt to address the gathering.

During the fight that followed the threat, it is alleged, Garretto drew a revolver and fired point blank at Corti, the ball lodging in the latter's stomach. The second shot went wild, and the third struck Vochini in the arm.

Dispensing With Formalities. The committee of the Literary Club desired to make the open meeting as social and informal as possible and thought there would be less stiffness if the guests and members would remove their wraps. Accordingly, in sending out the invitations to the meeting, they wrote a little postscript: "Please leave your clothes in the lower room."

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

The city of London Chess club has sent a challenge to the Brooklyn Chess club for the annual cable match.

David Goodwin of Richmond, Ind., has been acquitted of the charge of attempting to poison the family of Joseph Myers.

The hat of George Ward, who disappeared from Marlon, Ind., has been found in the river. A reward of $100 is offered by Mrs. Ward for the recovery of the body.

The body of J. M. Wilson, the government storekeeper who was buried beneath the ruins of Cornish's distillery at Peoria, Ill., with six other men, has been recovered.

John Irwin, a paroled convict, fatally shot Thomas Glenn at Shelby, Ind. The men were driving from Star City. Irwin was captured by Deputy Sheriff Mills near Farmersburg.

Frank W. Boss of Plymouth, Ind., announces that he will stand for chairman of the republican thirteenth congressional district. Boss for two years has been republican chairman, also has been engraving clerk in the Indiana senate. He is a graduate of Michigan university and is a lawyer.

The Terre Haute Electric company has leased for thirty years the interurban lines entering Terre Haute, Ind., owned by the Terre Haute Electric Traction company. Both companies are controlled by Stone & Webster of Boston.

A $600,000 mortgage has been filed by the Terre Haute Electric Traction company, which is building new lines to Paris, Ill., and Clinton, Ind.

By King Edward's command a memorial service for Sir Michael Herbert will be held in Marlborough house chapel, adjoining St. James' palace, Tuesday afternoon. Special seats will be reserved for members of the diplomatic corps.

SAWING WOOD AND SAYING—NOTHING.

IS JUST A CRANK

Man Named Elliott Tries To See Roosevelt—Was Armed With Knife and Revolver—Overpowered After A Struggle—Says He Is Roosevelt's Best Friend.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.)

Washington, Oct. 5.—A mysterious man undoubtedly demented attempted to get into the executive mansion this morning, saying the president and invited him to call "just for fun." The guard refused to permit him to enter and induced him to go away.

Four later the man returned and again demanded admission. When he was refused he became violent. Doorkeeper James Ciscle tried to get him to go away and man encountered followed in which the man was badly used up. He was armed with a revolver, and knife, using latter on Ciscle, inflicting wound on the elbow, the doorkeeper overpowered him and sent him to the hospital with scalp wound and wound on hand. He gives the name Peter Elliott and claims to live in Milwaukee. Secret service men recognize him as the stranger who attempted to enter the president's church yesterday, but was turned away by the ushers. It is learned that last week Elliott wrote a long, incoherent letter to President Roosevelt, saying he would visit him this week. Enclosed a photograph. Elliott became so violent again while in the police van, but was subdued after brief battle. Elliott denied he intended to kill the president, who he said was his best friend. In a rambling statement after his confinement he said the president wanted him to marry his daughter.

MASSACRE TALK IS RIFE AGAIN

VIENNA AUTHORITY BELIEVES RUSSIA ORDERED IT.

PEASANTRY THINK RUMOR TRUE

Claim the Chief of Police of Homel Said It Would Come Soon.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.) Vienna, Oct. 5.—A local newspaper says the peasantry about Mohileff, Russia, the scene of the Jewish massacre of last week are convinced that the imperial ukase issued the order for the massacre. The attitude of the authorities adds to this belief.

Was Foretold. The chief of police is accused of publicly declaring after the Homel massacre that a similar one would come off at Mohileff.

SEVEN GIRLS EAT RAT POISON

Children Enjoy a Stolen Lunch and Two of Them Are Dead.

New Orleans, La. Oct. 5.—Rejoicing because they thought they had evaded the rule forbidding the children to eat between meals, seven little orphans of the St. John's asylum stole some pieces of bread smeared over with rat poison and ate them. Two are now dead and the other five are in the charity hospital lingering between life and death. Inez Gauthier, aged 9, and Sarah Wilkinson, aged 6, are the two who have already died. The asylum is conducted by the Sisters. One of the rules is that there shall be no eating between meals. The children like to steal out "snacks" and enjoy them. So when these seven little girls found nice, fresh slices of bread lying all around, with a thick paste spread over them looking like jelly and with sugar sprinkled on them they devoured them with a relish. The paste was deadly poison.

LITTLE GIRL TAKES HER LIFE

Anna Eans, 12 Years Old, Drinks Carbolic Acid.

Clinton, Ind., Oct. 5.—Anna Eans, 12 years old, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. The little girl was taken to Terre Haute and placed in the children's home. She left the institution during the night and walked to Clinton, reaching there early in the morning. When Mrs. Crossley, who took the girl to Terre Haute, returned home she found the girl dying.

LEISHMAN FIRM IN HIS REFUSAL

WITHDRAWAL OF THE AMERICAN FLEET ASKED BY SULTAN.

MUST RECOGNIZE SCHOOLS

More Severe Fighting Reported in the Neighborhood of Bulgaria.

(Special By Scripps-McLae.) Constantinople, Oct. 5.—The sultan has again requested the withdrawal of the American fleet from Beirut. Minister Leishman has sent reply that the fleet will remain until the American schools have been recognized.

Turkish Losses. A report of the Turkish and Bulgarian conflict from Sofia says that a desperate battle has been fought at Demir-Kapia. Fighting is also reported near Godlova which lasted half a day.

TWO ARE KILLED BY CURRENT

Workmen Operating a Derrick Are Fatally Shocked by Wire.

Montreal, Oct. 5.—Two men were instantly killed in Point St. Charles and another badly shocked by the boom of a derrick they were operating coming in contact with an electric light wire. A. Parent and P. E. Prevost were turning the handle at the time. Prevost had only one hand on the handle and did not receive the full force of the current. Parent was using both hands and was instantly killed. Prevost's assistance and was instantly killed. Prevost will recover.

LATEST FORM OF HOG CHOLERA

Agricultural Department Announces Recent Discovery.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The agricultural department has received and published a report by E. A. De Schweinitz and M. Dorset of the biologic division of that department, in which they announce the discovery of the fact that there is a form of hog cholera which is not caused by the hog cholera bacillus. They say of the disorder: "The disease is highly contagious, healthy pigs that were allowed to come in contact with sick animals almost invariably becoming sick within the usual period of incubation. So far we have been unable to communicate this disease to any other animal than hogs."

WANT THE HOUSE; SALE IS REFUSED

Hyde and Brittain Claim That the Sale of the Goodwin House Was Refused.

In Elkhorn today the case of the Hyde and Brittain bank of Beloit against Mrs. A. F. Fife, owner of the Goodwin house in that city, is being heard by Judge Belden. The action is an endeavor to force a sale of the property to the Brittain bank, the plaintiffs claiming that they leased the property subject to sale to them at a stated price. They claim that they succeeded in purchasing the estate under the terms specified but that the owners refused to sell. E. D. McGowan of this city and Burr Jones of Madison, represent the plaintiffs, and Fethers, Jeffris, and Mount the defendants.

EIGHT ARE DROWNED IN STORM

Preacher and Indian Children Perish While Crossing Lake Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 5.—Rev. J. A. McLaughlin, who left Berens River, on Lake Winnipeg, Sept. 22, with an Indian guide and six children, whom he was taking to the Indian school at Brandon, has perished with his companions, in the lake. The eight persons left the Berens River settlement early in the morning in Mr. McLaughlin's small sailboat, and this was the last seen of them. That night a terrific storm raged over the lake and many of the stoutest boats had to put to shelter. It was the worst storm experienced on the lake in recent years.

CYCLONE KILLS THREE NEAR PRINCETON, ILL.

Hurricane Strikes Residence and Three Women Die of the Injuries They Receive.

Princeton Ill., Oct. 5.—A severe storm passed two miles southeast of this city, killing three persons and destroying a large amount of farm property. The dead: Mrs. Charles F. Sherwin; Mrs. Alvin Sherwin, mother-in-law of Mrs. Charles F. Sherwin; Miss Emma Welsh of Tiskilwa, visitor at the Sherwin house. Charles F. Sherwin suffered serious internal injuries, but will recover. The storm started two miles southeast of Princeton. At that place it destroyed a new residence erected by J. F. Cater this year. The hurricane next struck the residence of Mr. Sherwin, where the three women in the house at the time were killed, and Mr. Sherwin, who was about to enter the house, was seriously injured. At the residence of Mr. Cater the family escaped by going to the cellar. The Sherwin house was entirely blown away, and the women, who had not gone to the cellar, were blown into the yard. All of them died within two hours after the storm passed.

Successful Dance: The Trades Council dance Saturday evening at Assembly hall was a success in every way and a large crowd enjoyed themselves dancing to the strains of the Imperial band until twelve o'clock.

Stephenson's Bust.

A marble bust of George Stephenson was unveiled at the railway station at Rome recently. The bust was presented by the Institution of Civil Engineers to the municipality of Rome as a supplement to the tablet placed in the vestibule of the railway station at Rome in 1881 to commemorate the centenary of the birth of the father of the railway system.

STATE NOTES

Bishop Messmer and Mgr. Fox, assisted by priests, consecrated the new St. Francis church at Holland on Sunday.

Albert Glinne, aged 33 years, of Dover, a railroad timekeeper, was found dead in a toilet room on a Milwaukee passenger train near Lyons. He was subject to epileptic fits.

No apparent increase in attendance at the Congregational church, at Appleton, resulted today from the use of display advertisements to advertise the services. The morning sermon was on "Ideals for Middle Aged People," and the evening sermon on "Who Is My Neighbor?"

Announcements have been received of the wedding of Lieut. Harry W. Newton of Superior to Mrs. S. Beasley Travis of Honolulu, the event to take place at high noon on Oct. 20 at the St. Clement's chapel, Honolulu.

A calf awaiting slaughter in the rear of a Green Bay butcher shop jumped into the river in a dash for liberty. A gasoline launch gave chase and captured it, but after it had been landed with great difficulty, it fell dead.

A Pole arrested at Racine on a charge of assault asked permission to change his clothes and the request being granted he jumped from a second story window to the sidewalk, breaking the planks where he landed but making good his escape.

Seth Swanson, a 14 year old employe of a Marinette mill, was amusing himself by dangling a piece of strong cord on a rapidly revolving shaft, when the cord was suddenly caught fast and before he could let go his arm had been drawn around the shaft and broken.

GENERAL EXPIRES ON A TRAIN

W. P. Carlin of Carrollton, Ill., Dies in Montana.

Livingston, Mont., Oct. 5.—Brigadier General William P. Carlin, U. S. A., retired, of Carrollton, Ill., died on an east-bound Northern Pacific train while coming over the mountains just west of this city. He was en route to Omaha to visit friends and had taken the train at Spokane. General Carlin was about 75 years old. He served with distinction throughout the civil war.

"No luck" appeared tattooed on the forehead of a burglar who was sentenced to fifteen months' imprisonment in Paris the other day. He said the words had been there since he was a child, and had exercised an "unholy spell" on him ever since.

DISCONSOLATE MAN DIGS GRAVE

Pennsylvania Miner Is Rescued When at the Point of Starving.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 5.—At the bottom of a shallow grave, where he had lain several days, Peter Oskos, a miner, was found. The grave was in the woods, two miles from the town, and he had tried to starve himself to death. When rescued he was so weak he had to be carried, but in the evening after taking food he was strong enough to talk. He said he wanted to die, and had wandered into the woods and dug a grave.

IRRIGATION NEEDED IN THE WEST WITH GOVERNMENT CONTROL

DEVELOPMENT OF THE COUNTRY UP TO CONGRESS NOW.

THE EXISTING LAWS ARE BAD

If They Are Repealed, They Will Give the Settlers a Chance.

Some of the opponents of national irrigation, who would like to see all the resources of the west reserved for speculation, are asserting that the work which the government has undertaken might be performed more economically by private enterprise. The claim is utterly untenable, and for reasons which are obvious upon the slightest consideration.

To begin with, there is scarcely a place where important irrigation work may be done without acquiring a certain amount of private property as the foundation. Rights of way, reservoir rights and, sometimes, prior appropriations in the water supply, must be purchased in order to clear the way for a comprehensive undertaking.

Private Property. It often happens that such properties have been held for years with a view of selling at high prices when the time for development shall arrive. The private promoter who has selected his field of operations is easily subject to a "hold up". He is dealing with but a single proposition. He must have these privileges, or abandon his enterprise.

The government is in a very different situation. The irrigation law charges the secretary of the interior with the duty of investigating opportunities for reclamation in sixteen states and territories, in each of which there are many chances for the profitable expenditure of funds at his disposal. When his experts have determined what is a reasonable price for the property needed in a given locality, he is in a position to say "Take it, or leave it." And everybody understands that he means business.

Declined Propositions. The declaration of his proposition means simply that his field of operations will be instantly transferred elsewhere. He has nothing at stake in the matter. If one locality does not want the help of Uncle Sam, then there are fifty others that do. He can, of course, proceed by condemnation to acquire the property and have the case tried in a community which is quite certain to treat him fairly, but his strong card is the fact that the demand for government aid far exceeds the supply and that he, therefore, always make far better terms than private parties could hope to do, thus effecting a considerable saving in the initial cost of the work.

But this advantage is far less important than the one which the government enjoys on the financial side. It is notoriously difficult to finance private irrigation enterprises nowadays. It is never done except upon the promise of enormous profits. Examine the average promoter's prospectus, and you will find that the proposition runs about like this:

Land Worthless. The land is worthless without water. The company controls the only possible source of supply. When this is developed, the land will instantly be worth from $25 to $50 per acre improved, or twice as much after improvement. It will cost only $5. to $10 per acre to bring land and water together. The government price of land is $1.25 per acre. The difference between the cost of land and water and the value of these elements when they have been united is profit. And the prospectus usually figures that this will range all the way from 100 to 500 per cent. Usually these alluring figures are still farther inflated by the suggestion that the company can obtain plenty of dry land itself at government figures and hold it for speculation.

But the glittering prospectus is not yet done with the home seeker who forms the basis of all these cheerful expectations. It will be noted that he is to practically buy the system at several times what it cost, but is to own it afterwards? Decidedly not. The company still owns it and collects an annual rental for the use of the water to pay dividends on what? On a purely fictitious capitalization stocks and bonds which represent no investment except the cost of paper and ink.

Private Enterprise. This is the way private enterprises build irrigation works in the west. And the opponents of national irrigation say it is cheaper than government enterprise. Cheaper for whom?

It is certainly not cheaper for the man who wants to get a home on the land. Even if the glittering expectations of profit are never realized, exorbitant interest must be paid for the use of the construction fund. Men do not spend their money in new countries on ordinary terms. They demand a part of the fabulous profit which their capital is expected to create.

Is it cheaper for the people of the United States—for industrial interests of every description whose prosperity is to be enhanced by the opening and settlement of a mighty empire in which millions of men shall ultimately make their homes? No, no! Nothing could be more costly to the people of the United States than to leave the development of their public domain to promoters and speculators and to have the homeseeker burdened with the obligation to pay impossible profits to those who have made a monopoly of the water supply. The prosperity of all means the prosperity of each. Private enterprises has had its inning in connection with the irrigation industry of the west. And it has failed—failed utterly and miserably, leaving a trail of disappointed settlers and broken hearted investors. Now, let the government go forward with the great plan of creating comprehensive works and turning them over to the people at actual cost. Uncle Sam has the cheapest money and employs the best talent in every direction. No private corporation can compete with him in laying the foundation for civilization in these valleys of the west.

But one thing Uncle Sam must not fail to do in order to realize his expectations. He must save the public property before it is everlastingly too late—before the timber-clothed water sheds and the fertile agricultural valleys are all absorbed by the land grabbers. He must repeal the laws that make possible this nameless outrage upon the country and its people.

WILLIAM E. SMYTHE.

EGGS RISING IN PRICES NOW

Farmers Are Packing Their Products for Higher Prices Later

On in the Season. Eggs are now mostly shipped in and have gone up to 23 cents with a prospect of reaching 25 in the near future. Two cents per dozen were added to the price of fresh stock, both retail and wholesale, and when one eats two eggs for a meal he is going into money. The retail price for fresh stock will be 23 cents and the end may not be yet.

For the first time in months a quotation was started on storage eggs and these have been quoted at 23 cents. According to the merchants the greater part of the stock which will be offered at present will be from the storehouse, and the prices of this product will also be increased if many more demands are made on the cooling rooms for supplies. The stocks have been considerably reduced in the past month and coming earlier in the season than usual gives the men who are in control of the packed stock a chance to get higher prices, and it assures them that before the time of fresh eggs in quantities comes again they will have been cleared out.

THANKSGIVING IS NEAR AT HAND

The Prospects Are That Turkeys and Chickens Will Be Up in Prices.

Now that the fruit and fresh vegetable season is nearly over, those interested in the local markets are looking about for the Thanksgiving time and frequent visits are being made in the country in search of turkeys which can be contracted for.

Buyers Talk. The buyers who have been going through the country report there is not any desire on the part of those who have the Thanksgiving fowl to contract for their delivery at present. There is every reason to think they are not going to be too plentiful and that prices will be advanced considerably between now and the time the birds are wanted for delivery. Several of those who look after the poultry interests of local concerns have been investigating with an idea of getting a line on the supply available and they find where they have heretofore been good quantities of turkeys, there are only a few this year, and throughout the territory in this vicinity which has usually supplied a greater part of the fowl to the local men, there will not be half enough to go round.

Rainy Season. The rains of the early spring and the past summer have not been in favor of the young birds and while as many as usual were provided for in the settings they have been killed off by the bad weather and parties who in the past have been depended upon for 100 or more turkeys are only able to show half as many and some have practically none.

Higher Prices. The price of last season about the holiday time was 20 cents per pound but housewives cannot expect to get them at this figure this season and they will bring nearer 25 cents than 20. While the bad conditions have not existed in the east and other turkey sections there will not be any birds in that section for shipment as the eastern market has always looked to the west for reinforcement and with the scarcity in these sections there will be no overplus in other parts to make up.

PRETTIEST DANCE OF THE SEASON

A. M. Valentine and Miss Mae Valentine Entertain at Central Hall.

A delightful dancing party was given by Mr. A. M. Valentine and Miss Valentine at Central hall Saturday evening to meet Miss Grace Valentine, the Misses Morgan, and Mr. and Mrs. Archard. The party received the guests near the main entrance and the hall was prettily decorated with palms and flowers. Light refreshments were served during the evening.

CHICAGO LEADS IN LIVE STOCK

It Is Now the Greatest Market in the World for Fresh Foods.

"As a live stock market, Chicago stands second to none," said a well known dealer yesterday. "The figures for 1902 show receipts at Chicago that tell volumes if you stop to consider their full import. Almost eight million head of sheep, over four million hogs, a hundred thousand horses; a quarter million calves and three million cattle were brought to the Chicago market last year by the big railroads which reach out like the Chicago & North-Western, into the cattle ranges and feeding grounds all over the west. The reports show 278,100 carloads of live stock received here in 1902—quite a growth for the 55 years since the first shipment."

Few Hogs. The stockman ruminated a moment. "That first shipment was queer, now, wasn't it?" he continued. "Did you see that little account of it in the papers the other day? Young Milligan Hunt, now over 80 years old, had started to market with a sled load of hogs and when he got across the Des Plaines river he found there was no snow on which to draw his pigs the rest of the journey."

"That was in '48, the year the Galena road, now the Chicago & North-Western, built its first ten miles; and young Hunt made a dicker with the crew of a construction train, loaded his porkers on the train, and rode into Chicago triumphant, behind the little old 'Pioneer'."

Old Locomotive. "Was you ever out to the Field Columbian museum, Chicago?" he continued. "Well, you could go out there some day and see that old locomotive. She stands for a good deal from Chicago's point of view.—Brought in the first load of live stock, and the day the road was opened and the mayor and the big men of the town were trying the novelty of a ride on the first rail shipment of grain into town. Farmer out on the prairie hauled the junksters and loaded his wheat on a good deal like Hunt had the hogs carried in."

65,000 Hogs. "They tell me now," he went on, slowly shifting his position, "that last year that load of hogs had grown to over 65,000 carloads of livestock brought into Chicago over the North-Western line, and instead of one wagon load of wheat the North-Western brought over 30,000,000 bushels of grain to the city. The 'Pioneer' was surely well named, young man, according to my view of things."

WESTERN TEAMS TO BE STRONG

Saturday's Games Show the Quality of Football Material This Fall.

Michigan's first appearance in the intercollegiate football arena on Saturday revealed to the western college men that the champion varsity of last year is to be succeeded by a strong defensive team. The initial bow of the Badgers at Madison showed them to be as reported, a green squad made up of good material.

The games of Saturday indicated that Minnesota retains a fast pace; Chicago has much to do in building up a varsity line; that Illinois and Northwestern are making progress and that Purdue is "coming."

The score of 31 to 0 by Michigan against Case, while not considered as anything startling, was taken by college men to indicate a strong, high grade squad at Ann Arbor. Case had practically the same team which won the Ohio state championship, presumably strong. But the Michigan men did not allow Case to make a first down once. This was considered a distinct achievement for an opening game.

As to the offense, the game emphasized the fact that in Heston and Graver of 1899 fame and Hammond and Longman, the finds of this year, Coach Yost has backs who are not only fast, but also heavy. There, was, however, nothing to indicate that Michigan has a phenomenal sprinting quarter back like Ekersall, or "Boss" Weeks of the last year's championship team. In general it seems that Michigan has an ample quantity of high grade varsity material.

The Wisconsin showing against Northwestern colleg at Naperville indicates that Coach Curtis and the Wisconsin alumni leaders have not gone as far in the early practice. This could not be expected, because there are few veterans on their squad. The brilliant playing of individual Badgers was the hopeful sign from the point of view of Wisconsin's chances in big games.

The report that the Minnesota giants are fast was given another piece of support by the score of 40 to 0 against Grinnell's clever tackles. Minnesota, on paper, seems clearly in the championship class.

Whether or not Ekersall will be able to keep up the pace set in minor games is a question yet unanswered on the midway. On Ekersall's ability to keep the game going against real varsity opponents will depend the maroon's progress in the championship games to come. The showing of Ekersall on Saturday against Indiana was superb. The rest of the team probably did not show its real ability owing to the hot weather.

QUIET PERVADES TOBACCO MARKET

FEW SALES YET AT THE LOCAL WAREHOUSES.

HALF OF '92 CROP MARKED

Local Packers Give That Estimate, But Say Loss Will Be in Re Handling.

The prevailing quiet that has characterized the tobacco industry in the Janesville warehouses was only interrupted by a few small sales last week. Sampling is still going on and one of the local dealers said Saturday that the loss would be mostly in the handling. Fifty per cent. of the cases would have to be marked. Among the buyers who visited the city during the week were S. Pretzfeldt of New York, Charles Mabbett of Edgerton, George Mitchellson of St. Paul, and John Oberhelm of Cincinnati.

Edgerton Reports. Reports from Edgerton chronicle a quiet, but favorable to a rapid curing in the sheds and a decidedly quiet market. Most of the early harvested leaf is now cured out to the stem and even the later cut has now passed danger from further shed damage. Sampling of the '92 packings is still going forward but few of the samples have yet been sent to the eastern market centers. Shipments out of storage for the week amounted to 500 cases.

The General Outlook. According to the Edgerton experts the damage to the 1902 packings will be mostly confined to white mold and must, with only a touch of black rot, that has in other years been more extensive. From 15 to 20 per cent. of the goods are being given marked tickets by the inspectors and will require re-handling. The amount of loss from the damage will probably not exceed the cost of re-handling the marked cases.

Lower Grades Suffer. The lower grades have suffered still greater, especially fillers which are damaged beyond the experience of any other season in many years. That every packer must pocket a loss upon his investment of fillers where they have been carried over the sweat, seems certain.

No Money in Fillers. There has been no money in Wisconsin fillers for some years past and the time is not very distant when packers will decline to buy these goods altogether or take them at less price than has lately been paid growers. With the amount of damage the packers of 1902 have to contend with, there can be no extensive profit in the transaction unless holders of these goods are able to realize higher prices than the market at present indicates.

Mold Damage. The mold damage in Wisconsin tobacco, according to the Reporter, is something that has appeared in recent years and packers have speculated considerably over its cause without determining an entirely satisfactory solution. It is generally agreed, however, that tobacco that was fully ripe and matured when harvested and had been carefully handled and packed, came through comparatively sound.

Unripe Crops Suffer. On the other hand, unripe crops and those devoid of the usual amount of gum were most affected. Upon the theory it is easy to account for the unusual damage to be found in filler grades this season. For the first time in some years tobacco remaining in country hands is affected fully as much as in warehouse curing, so it can hardly be claimed that a light sweat is a preventative for the mold damage.

The Eastern Markets. Brisk trade conditions and a pressing demand for Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and Ohio leaf are reported in New York. One firm alone disposed of over 3,000 cases of tobacco, composed of 1902 Wisconsin and 1902 Pennsylvania Broad leaf. The Wisconsin sells at a wide range of prices, according to grade, and the Pennsylvania bring 1 2 to 13 cents for running lots. The total sales of Wisconsin for the week aggregate about 1,500 cases, and of Pennsylvania about 2,500 cases, including a lot of 400 cases of 1902 Broad leaf, fillers out, which brought 12 cents. Some 800 cases of 1902 Big Flats were sold for export at 5 1/2 and 6 cents.

Ohio Crop Good. Most of the Ohio growers finished cutting last week. The drought has affected the size of the crop to some extent but the general consensus of opinion is that the quality will be far above the average. Reports from Lancaster, Pennsylvania are to the effect that 4,000 cases were disposed of during the week.

Buyers Stand Pat. Hallstrom damage to the Connecticut vane crop was considerably less than was anticipated. Reports from that region are to the effect that growers are asking fancy prices for their leaf and buyers are holding aloof. The grower who gets 30 cents a pound for his tobacco is the exception. New England seconds are not so much in demand as the higher grades. Practically the only sales of standing tobacco have been in the broad leaf section, and the prices reported are higher than those offered for the run of Havana tobacco even in good years.

...Forty Years Ago...

forty years ago. Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, October 5, 1863.—Remember the meeting of the Union club this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

National Thanksgiving.—The president has designated the 26th of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

From the 3rd Wisconsin Battery.—In Camp Near Chattanooga, Sept. 27th, 1863.—Last Saturday and Sunday there was desperate fighting in and around Crawfish Springs; our battery being completely cut off from Van Cleave's division, the 3rd, brigade, supporting our battery advanced into a cornfield, (on Saturday) and were repulsed; our battery moved to the enemy's left and then fired on the enemy's flank, causing sad havoc, the flower of the southern confederacy being before us.

On Sunday the 2nd Wisconsin battery was supporting the left of Davis' division, and after advancing into the woods, were overpowered and compelled to fall back to a hill, where other batteries were planted. The enemy here drove our infantry like chaff before the wind, and we were compelled to leave five out of six guns. My impression is that James Livingston, Paul Guion, Palmer and Thos. Boyle, of Kenosha, are prisoners in the enemy's lines. They have driven us thus far, but no farther can they come.

Respectfully,
Willard A. Marshall,
Sergeant 1st. gun, 3d. Wis. Battery.

P. S.—James Livingston's parents live near Janesville, and they will no doubt see it in your paper earlier than to write to them. Our loss in the two days' fight has been very heavy; besides losing five guns, and we are now minus twenty-six men.

1st Division of Cavalry, near Dunlap, Oct. 3.—Col. Edward M. McCook with the 1st Wisconsin and 2d Indiana cavalry attacked Wheeler's forces, 4,000, at Anderson's Cross Roads, yesterday, and whipped them badly, killing and wounding 120 taking 37 prisoners, capturing all the government property, including 800 mules and the prisoners taken from our train. Among the prisoners is a major on Wheeler's staff, commander of his escort, and a major on Gen. Martin's staff. The enemy was completely routed and driven 10 miles.

Cincinnati, Oct. 4.—A special to the Commercial from Chattanooga the 30th, says 200 ambulances, sent within the enemy's lines under a flag of truce, brought in over 500 of our wounded. While in the enemy's hands they had nothing to eat but corn bread. The rebels treated them very kindly, expressing regret that they could not provide better for them. They refuse to permit the bodies of wounded or deceased officers to be removed. The enemy holds fifty two of our surgeons as prisoners. Our ambulances returned to the rebel lines the wounded rebels who fell into our hands.

Both armies are busy fortifying. The pickets are within a stone throw of each other. The associated press report of the battle causes considerable indignation among the troops. The statement that Reynolds' and Brahm's division were thrown into disorder is incorrect. I learn from Gen. Thomas that to the obstinate bravery of these commands the army is largely indebted for its safety. Our wounded are well cared for and comfortably situated.

A FLOOD VICTIM IN JANESVILLE

William Oliver, Brother of Mrs. Chas. Mohr, Relates Experiences in Kansas.

After a short visit in Janesville, William Oliver, a brother of Mrs. Charles Mohr, of this city, left Sunday morning for his home in Topeka, Kansas. Before going down to Topeka to meet him last week, Mrs. Mohr had never seen her brother. He left his home in Braidwood, Ill., when a boy and suffered so many reverses in the west during the first few years there that he was unable to afford the time to return east.

A Victim of Flood.
Mr. Oliver and his wife were marooned for twenty-four hours in the second story of a neighbor's house during the great flood that devastated that section this spring, and were finally taken out in boats. They were in a one-story house on the fruit farm which they own when a neighbor came to warn them of the approach of the flood. The land was high and they felt measurably secure. Mr. Oliver, however, took the precaution to release his stock and lash his farm implements to trees.

Waist Deep in Water
He had entered the house to get something, and opening the door, was about to step out again when he discovered to his amazement that the ground was covered with water and that it was rapidly rising. So silent had been his approach that neither he nor his wife had heard a warning sound. Mr. Oliver thought quickly. He seized a bucket and running to the pump, was just able to fill it with fresh water before the flood rose above the bottom of the wall. Mrs. Oliver by some good fortune had baked bread that day.

Escape Starvation
With the leaves and pail of water they started for the neighbor's house. Before they had reached it the water was waist-deep. They found refuge in the second story and remained there until rescued, subsisting entirely on the bread and water. The water rose seven feet and remained at that depth for some time.

Both Crops Destroyed
The flood destroyed the crops that were just growing and a cloud-burst about a month later washed away the black soil and left in the place of fertile farms worth $200 an acre, arid beds of sand and clay which are now practically valueless. Mr. Oliver says that another visitation of the kind will cause him to leave Kansas. Besides his fruit farm, he is the proprietor of a general store and a department store in Topeka.

W. S. BISSELL IS SERIOUSLY ILL
Former Postmaster General May Be Dying of Cancer.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Wilson S. Bissell, postmaster general in the Cleveland administration, is seriously ill. He recently returned from a long vacation in the east and resumed his law practice. Recently he was forced to give up his work, but his condition was not regarded as serious until today. The patient's physician declined to confirm or deny a rumor that Mr. Bissell is suffering from an internal cancer. "Mr. Bissell's condition is serious," he said. "That is all we care to say in regard to his illness at present."

Rafferty, the Yale end rush, like Marshall, bids fair to be a better captain than the brilliant De Witt, though a prediction of this kind is to a great degree guesswork until a man is actually tried out.

In appearance Rafferty is tall and a little ungainly. He has the old time Yale quality of bulldogs and to a degree greater than a casual look reveals. In fact, it might be said parenthetically nothing is more characteristic of football players in general than their appearance to a great degree belies them.

Rafferty is a first class end, surpassed only in reputation by two men on the gridiron this season, Davis of Princeton and Shevlin of Yale. Yet he is the kind of man who improves his game steadily and who may continue to do so in spite of the burdens of captaincy. He stands 6 feet 1 inch in height and weighs 170 pounds.

Captains Of Big Elevens

Leaders of Football Teams This Season Are Mostly Linemen. De Witt, Princeton's Giant Guard, Rafferty, Marshall, Etc.

Almost 70 per cent of the best known football captains this year have been selected from linemen. For many years the back field positions received the preference and the man who was elected captain from a line position had to have exceptional ability.

The change has been brought about by the system of play where the line men ran with the ball. Now that guards back and other formations have been relegated to the rear, it is believed that within the next few years the choice will be given to the back field. Ends seem to be the popular position for this season, with tackles next in order and quarter back third on the list. Teams that have elected captains for next year follow:

Yale, end, Rafferty; Harvard, quarter back, Marshall; Princeton, guard, De Witt; Cornell, guard, Hunt; University of Pennsylvania, end, Metzger; Columbia, half back, Smith; West Point, end, Farnsworth; Annapolis, end, Soule; Lafayette, guard, Ernst; Carlisle Indiana, quarter back, Johnson; Georgetown, half back, Hart; Wesleyan, center, Gillespie; Brown, tackle, Webb; Williams, full back, Peabody; Haverford, half back, Thorne; Syracuse, quarter back, O'Neill; Rochester, guard, Clark; Chicago, center rush, Ellisworth; Michigan, end, Rudden; Wisconsin, end, Abbott; Missouri, tackle, Washner; Dickinson, end, Williams; Northwestern, tackle, Flanagan; Minnesota, end, Rogers; Purdue, quarter back, Osborne; Washington and Lee, tackle, Brandier; Iowa, end, Southard; Georgia, center, Katron; Bucknell, end, Cockill; Swarthmore, half back, Smith.

Among this year's captains three figures loom up. They are the captains of three of the most important teams

CAPTAIN MARSHALL, HARVARD'S QUARTER BACK.

In the country, the men who shoulder the responsibilities on the field and off from the first hot September days until the cold November sun shall sink on victory or defeat—De Witt of Princeton, Marshall of Harvard and Rafferty of Yale.

Seldom has there been a trio of men placed in similar positions and differing in so many ways from each other.

The number of star players who develop anew each year is considerably less than the number who are left over from the year before and who are known quantities when the season begins. The character of the big contests at the end of the season which attract the popular interest to such a degree—whether the big game shall be distinguished by a brilliant run, a marvelous drop kick or a relentless mass play—depends in great measure upon the individual qualities of a few men, who from the start are familiar figures.

To begin with, the members of the foregoing trio are totally unlike in their physical makeup. De Witt is a giant guard; Marshall a short, stocky quarter back, and Rafferty a tall, snappy end rush. But this is far from being all, for in other qualities they contrast even more strongly. While it may be said that all three are star players, still the Princeton man, in actual ability and skill as a football player, so far outshines the two others that he must be placed in a class by himself. De Witt marks the beginning of a new era in football—namely, a return to the kicking of Ball and Moffatt.

As a guard alone on defensive and offensive work he was considerably below the wonderful Glass of Yale, whom he had to face last year in the Yale-Princeton game, but he was for all that equaled by few and surpassed only by the two Yale men, Glass and Goss.

Marshall, the Harvard captain, is a quarter back of unusual ability, though inferior in brilliance to Daly, the ex-Harvard captain, now of West Point, and to Rockwell of Yale. He occupies about the same position behind the line that De Witt does as a guard in the line, a star player of the first rank.

As a captain Marshall may be expected to have his team more under his control than De Witt. Marshall is a veteran quarter back, of several years' standing, and is remarkable for coolness in a position where the nervous strain is greater than in any other game. Like his predecessor, Daly, he runs a team like a machine and is a good field general. His self mastery never deserts him for an instant. He has an advantage over both De Witt and Rafferty in that he is a quarter back and will not have to depend upon another man to run his team for him. He is the kind of man whose achievements will be as much in the management of men and generalship as in individual brilliance, though it is not a difficult prophecy to foretell that in many a half raising run back through a broken field or dash around the end Carl Marshall will carry the ball.

OF UNTOLD VALUE

The Information Contained in This Gentleman's Statement is Priceless.

The hale, hearty, the strong can afford to toss this paper to one side impatiently when they read the following but any sufferer in Janesville who has suffered hours of torture caused by kidney complaint will stand in his own light if he does not follow the valuable advice offered here:

Mr. W. Samp of 412 Euclid avenue, proprietor of the largest rock quarry business in Beloit says: "I had trouble with my kidneys for many years. It consisted mainly of a lame and aching back and there were occasional times when I had such severe attacks that I could not get out of the house for two or three weeks at a time. I was then practically helpless for it was painful to move. At other times it assumed a milder form being a dull aching across my kidneys, used medicines of different kinds but I never found anything that gave the satisfaction Doan's Kidney Pills gave. This remedy is worthy of a high recommendation and it is a pleasure for me to endorse it as doing all that is claimed for it."

Just such emphatic endorsements can be had right here in Janesville. Drop into the People's Drug Co.'s store and ask what their customers report.

THE COMMON COUNCIL

A Gazette editorial, under the caption, "over conscientious," recently published has been the subject of both commendation and criticism.

It is commended by people who believe that a progressive city can not afford to be handicapped by trifling technicalities, and criticised by a few men who fear that the reform movement in non-partisan municipal government will die a "bornin."

Some members of the council regard the matter as personal and take exception to it on that account.

To this last class of objectors, a sentence should be sufficient to satisfy them that no self-respecting journal descends to the level of personalities. A newspaper has neither friends to reward, nor enemies to punish, and it has nothing to do with the private life of individuals in the expression of opinion.

Public office places a man in a public position, and while this position may be purely honorary, he who holds it is a public servant, and his public acts are open to criticism or commendation, as the case may warrant.

A newspaper office is the favorite resort for all sorts of grievances, and many people have an idea that the principle mission of a paper is to air other people's troubles, and they always go away disappointed.

The public servant, like the public speaker or writer, never expects people to come to him and tell him that his action meets with their approval, but he may be assured that if public sentiment does not approve, that it is never backward in expressing disapproval.

The common council is composed of ten good men and a presiding officer, who are supposed to work in harmony for the best interests of the city.

In the days of the old regime it was severely criticised for being a one man council, but with change of administration from a political to a non-partisan body, this criticism has passed away. The public regards the present council as a unit, and the paper in attempting to voice public sentiment speaks of it as a unit.

The men composing this body are honest upright gentlemen who enjoy as individuals the respect and confidence of their constituents. A majority of these men were elected on a business reform measure and it is natural that they should feel keenly the burden of responsibility placed upon them.

It is quite possible that, under this burden, some conditions have magnified, until an effort is made to accomplish in a single year the work that should be distributed over a term of years.

They started out well in reducing the tax levy, but the people do not expect them to make much of a showing this year, along that line. The old council was criticised, not so much for spending money as for wasting it. The people expect that the money collected will be spent judiciously.

They do not want to confront a bankrupt treasury, neither do they want to accumulate a bank account. Public sentiment demands of public servants intelligence, integrity, wisdom, and a liberal policy in dealing with public affairs. These demands are not unreasonable and they should be cheerfully met.

As regards the future so far as a reform government is concerned, much depends upon the record made by the present council. The public will judge by results, not as to how much money is spent, but as to how wisely it is spent.

There is an economy that in the end means extravagance. The closing of the $10,000 crushing plant, that could have been operated at small expense, and the product used in needed street repairs is open to this class of criticism. There is no economy in neglect of either public or private property.

The ideal city government is non-partisan in character. Janesville is experimenting for the first time with the ideal.

It remains for the council to say by the wisdom and common sense displayed, whether the experiment shows results in permanent reform.

The Gazette voices public sentiment in wishing the members, individually and collectively, God speed, and the paper will be pardoned for suggesting that a more liberal policy in dealing with some questions, will meet with public approval.

BLUNDERS SOMETIMES HELP.

The Wall Street Journal contains the following sensible editorial: The world makes progress through its blunders. It stumbles continually, but stumbles on. Even when it falls, it falls forward, not backward. Were it not for this law of progress, the situation at times would appear black indeed. There is no movement which, in a large way, should promise more for the development of the country than the organization of labor. Viewed rightly this is a movement upwards and onward. It means an evolution a lifting up of the working classes of the country into a higher state. It is not surprising, however, that its progress is accompanied by a series of blunders. It is blundering now, and so previous are its blunders there would be a cause for grave apprehension, but for the certainty that in spite of its stumbling, real progress is making toward an ultimate solution of the problem.

Trade unionism is blundering, first of all in attempting to create a labor trust modelled on the worst type of the capitalist trust, that which seeks to crush competition, not to regulate it; to establish a monopoly not to promote stability. Just as capital two years, and even one year ago, thought that there was no limit to the period of expansion in this country, and entered into all sorts of schemes of promotion, so trade unionism, now that the promoters have awakened to a realization of the fact that the limit of expansion has for the present been reached, are going ahead as if the mine of business activity was inexhaustible, and that no matter how high it put its demands, it could force capital to accede to them.

It is a saddening spectacle to see such leaders of trade unions as Mr. Gompers and Mr. Mitchell raising the issue of the closed shop with the president of the United States, attempting to make him, in the direction of the government, discriminate between union and free labor. It is a saddening spectacle to see the structural steel workers in convention at Kansas City endorsing Sam Parks and voting him money. These are labor's blunders. By raising the issue of the closed shop with President Roosevelt it turns against itself a large measure of public support that would naturally be on its side in any reasonable plan of development. By giving countenance and aid to Sam Parks, the structural steel workers, if they but knew it, are only increasing the chances of a trade reaction from which they would suffer far more than capital.

As Mr. Widener truly says: "Parks and his associates in New York City by their action in tying up the large building operations there injuriously affecting the income of thousands and thousands of iron and steel workers whose labor intervenes between the mining of the raw ore and the completion of the finished shapes." Building operations in New York and in other cities are not likely to be actively resumed until the issue raised by Sam Parks is settled.

Capital by its blunders, by its excesses, by its over promotions, has done much to create the present situation of depression in the markets. But labor seems disposed to repeat in double measure its mistakes. Its leaders should take heed before going too far. There is yet time to get back on the right track.

The Carnegie Steel company has recently served notice on its employees, that wages will be revised Jan. 1. This does not mean an advance but more than likely means a decline, as the market for steel and iron is dull compared with a year ago. This should prove a warning to labor organizations. It is sometimes easier to close a plant than it is to open it.

The tariff discussions in England that created so much discussion in the cabinet, will be a live question at no distant day. "Free trade England" is virtually a thing of the past. When tariff laws are established it will effect trade relations with America, as well as all other countries.

The Canadian government and Canadian capital, has come to the rescue of the Consolidation Soo company. $300,000 has been forwarded to pay wages due, and within a reasonable time the company will be on its feet under new and more efficient management.

If brother Dowle wants to work off a little enthusiasm, he might let the Mormons go for a while, and join the Salvation army down in the mountains of Kentucky.

Editor Bryan, of the Commoner, sent an article on the race problem to the Evening Post, and he was so impressed with its importance that he prints it in his own paper over his signature.

PRESS COMMENT.

Chicago Record Herald: The Holstein cow has been vindicated by the scientists, hence we get back to the proposition that it all depends upon who owns the Holstein.

St. Louis Globe Democrat: Neither the Prince of Wales nor Lord Roberts can come to the fair. Guess we will have to be satisfied with the Sultan of Sulu and the Earl of Pawtucket.

Atlanta Journal: Two Italians have been sentenced for two months each at Marseilles for throwing a tomato at the Premier of France. We presume that if they had heaved a watermelon at the premier their would have splattered themselves into jail for life. The correspondent, by the way, who made two men co-operate in throwing a tomato ought to get a six month sentence in Pulitzer's school of journalism.

Chicago Chronicle: The Hatfields, famous Kentucky and West Virginians for their feud with the McCoy's, have packed up bag and baggage and, to the number of about fifty, have started west. Their destination is not stated, but they are probably headed for Chicago with the hope of becoming Cook county constables.

New York World: Market news is generally favorable. Crops are better than seemed likely a month ago. Railway earnings remain large. Industry is active, retail trade is heavy. But it would be idle to deny that a continuance of Wall street indignations must unfavorably affect general business enterprises and by the contraction of credit. Legitimate business interests have the right to resent the greed of the "underwriters" of new securities which has brought on these troubles.

Baptist Church is Dedicated. Fairbury, Ill., Oct. 5.—The dedication exercises of the Baptist church were held Sunday, Judson B. Thomas, D. D., of Chicago preaching in the forenoon and George H. Simmons, D. D., of Peoria preaching in the evening. A total of $8,000 has been expended on the structure.

Creditor Buys Railroad. Rapid City, S. D., Oct. 5.—C. D. Crouch of Arkon, Ohio, has purchased the Dakota Pacific railroad, formerly known as the Dakota, Wyoming & Missouri, at receiver's sale. Mr. Crouch was the heaviest creditor of the company.

Negro Shoots Patrolman. St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 5.—A street duel between two police officers and several negroes resulted in the probably fatal shooting of Patrolman Edward Rice and Samuel Newby, a negro.

SUNDAY SERMON BY REV. WARNER

METHODIST DIVINE GAVE A TELLING SERMON.

IT WAS AN EARNEST TALK

His Subject Was Full of Interest to All His Congregation.

Spiritual Dynamics
Acts. 1:8.—A traveler sometimes pauses on a commanding eminence and seems his vision upon the lovely scenes through which he has just passed. The graceful valleys; the shapely hills; the green of the pasture land; the gold of the harvest field; the russet of the orchard, and the many hued autumn leaves of the forest; the streams binding as with a silver ribbon the skirts of the hills; the peaceful dwellings of the farmer, and here and there, a church spire pointing to higher living. All these hold him entranced for a time ere he addresses himself to his farther journey. So Luke having written the life of Jesus hangs, as one in love with the marvelous words and matchless deeds of the Son of God. He fills a page with this beautiful vision ere he begins the Acts of the Apostles. The text is taken from this loving retrospect. It contains the words of Christ just before his ascension. In it he says, "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me in Judea, Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

True Christians Strong
Some weak men about us seem to be in the wriggling stage, but a certain rugged strength belongs to the Bible worthies. Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Joshua and Elijah were men of moral might. The New Testament is a revelation of power. In it we read that "Jesus returned from Galilee in the power of the spirit." That in the city of Capernaum where He was surrounded by disease, "the power of God was present to heal." John says of the followers of this mighty Christ that "to them gave He power to become the sons of God."

In the text Christ promises that His disciples shall receive "Dunamos" from on high, or the word from which dynamite is derived. We know that on the day of Pentecost something came over the disciples that enabled them to proclaim a gospel not of force but of power. Paul the learned says, "I am not ashamed of the gospel for it is the power of God unto salvation." We see in them a mental and spiritual power that took joyfully the spoiling of their goods, that bravely faced idolatry and superstition, the dungeon and the stocks, the scourge and the rack, the cross and the wild beasts of the arena, an ability which made fishermen the world's teachers and which enabled 120 unknown men and women to begin a religious movement that has produced some of the strongest characters of history.

Power of a White Life
In Chicago you will often see a policeman lift his white gloved hand on a congested street corner and all traffic ceases. Behind that white hand is the might of the city—or Chicago. Everybody respects a clean life. Purity is power. Some have the strength of ten because their hearts are pure. The Holy Spirit helps in building a holy life. Let Christians secure this aid. Let them be sincere, upright in business and constantly live the golden rule; then let them lift their white hands high in favor of the right and the traffic in sin will pause, and the interest of justice and truth among men will be advanced.

The white life is not the only mighty agent that the spirit of God uses. The human voice, a most marvelous musical instrument, may be made potent for righteousness. We owe to testimony our rapid recent progress. The record of past discoveries has been preserved in books and in the memory of teachers. Their testimony enables us to make new advancement in learning and invention. On the day of Pentecost the spirit rested upon each disciple in the form of a cloven tongue of fire. Given a good life, full of the spirit of Christ and the spoken or written witness of such a life is very helpful. The Salvation Army with all its usefulness is built about the simple heartfelt testimonies of those who know the power of Jesus to save.

Power of Love
A tender interest in others adds weight to Christian testimony. No one doubts the loyalty of the old soldier. A veteran of the wars of Greece entered a court room and held up a sleeveless arm. The court listened intently while he gave his testimony, he won his case because he had given his arm for his country. Sympathy and kindness often open the way for gospel truth. The love of a mother for her children makes her prayers and testimonies so effective in leading them to Christ. This is one reason why we never get out of the shadow of the old home. Christian love is the art of living justly and helpfully with men. This is the supreme need of this hour. Its possession will be the greatest achievement of the 20th century. All these elements of power are the gifts of the Holy Spirit. God will give them for the asking. Let us have them.

PASSENGER TRAIN WRECKED SUNDAY

Open Switch Caused an Accident Near Rockton, on the St. Paul Road.

The engine of a passenger train bound for Chicago on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road collided with a freight engine standing on a side track at Rockton, Ill., Sunday morning. The passenger engine was demolished and the baggage car smashed. John Barron, of Milwaukee, engineer of the passenger train, was the only person injured, and he not seriously. An open switch was the cause of the accident.

BIG K. OF C. MEETING HELD AT ROCKFORD

Seventy-Five From Janesville Council Attended—Bishop Muldoon Spoke.

About seventy-five members of Carroll Council, No. 196, of the Knights of Columbus, attended the gathering in Rockford yesterday. There were 102 candidates and over 1200 members were present. Two special trains from Chicago brought in over 600 and delegations from Belvidere, Woodstock, Harvard, Chicago Heights, Beloit, and Janesville, were present. There was a banquet in Germania hall in the evening at which Rev. J. J. Flaherty of Rockford acted as toastmaster. Bishop Muldoon of Chicago delivered the principal address of the evening, his subject being "The Mission of the Knights of Columbus." Music was furnished by the Belvidere orchestra. The Janesville delegation returned on the interurban, leaving Rockford at 11:30. It is expected that a number of candidates from Janesville will be given the degree work at Baraboo on November 1.

ATTENDANCE IS NOW INCREASING

University Will Touch the Three Thousand Mark This Season.

There are somewhat over 300 new students registered at the university. Perhaps 700 are freshmen. Friday 50 students were enrolled. This makes the total registration 125 more freshmen and 125 more upperclassmen larger than at the corresponding time a year ago. This shows a gratifying growth of the university, calculated upon the enrollment of the first week. The total enrollment for the year will be not much less than 3,000.

Crane, Milton; Almon, Baldwin, Clinton; Alexander, Campbell, Edgerton; W. A. Mahew, Clinton, and F. Tice of Brodhead, Dane county.

FIRST CLASSES IN GRADE WORK

START THIS EVENING AT THE Y. M. C. A.

BUSINESS MEN INTERESTED

Director Ward Shows What Physical Culture Really Is—Effect on the Business Man.

The first class of the regular gymnasium work of the Y. M. C. A. for the season of '03-'04 will begin this evening. For the past two weeks preliminary classes have been held and tonight the men will be placed in their respective grades and a thorough systematic work will be given each grade.

Four Grades
At first but three grades will be taken up and as the men become advanced a fourth grade will be put in. Each class will be under the direction of a competent leader, who will put time and thought into his preparation in a special class conducted for that purpose by the physical director.

Same as in Leading Associations
The system of graded apparatus work to be used is the same as that taught in all of the leading associations. This method provides a place for everyone and a man starting the work at any time will find a class suited to his ability. Mr. Ward the physical director, hopes that men who are interested will plan their time so as to enter these classes. Those who have no desire for apparatus work, will find sufficient exercise in the twenty-five minutes' drill preceding each class.

Circulars have been printed and are being distributed concerning the course of entertainments and lectures that have been arranged and which promise to be of much interest.

What Physical Culture Means
"It is reported that in China the doctor receives a regular allowance as long as he keeps his patient in perfect health," said the director yesterday. "But when sickness comes the allowance ceases, and is not resumed until the health of the patient returns. If this method was tried in America and we were to pay the doctor only when we were well, we would be safe in saying that the doctor would devise some plan whereby the patient would not require his medicine so often. This is not to make light of the medical profession. The doctor is essential. The doctor is necessary because man through ignorance and carelessness neglects and abuses his body. The world is full of good things for man's use and that he should be denied their enjoyment because of his own neglect is certainly to be regretted."

"But man should proceed in the line that preventive rather than curative methods should rule in every day life."

Disease Germ
"Disease, which now means the existence of germ life, cannot take root in a perfectly healthy body, and when it does take hold, its existence is proof that the body was in a weakened condition at the time of its eruption. If a horse were confined to its stall for any length of time deprived of air and exercise, it would soon become weak and diseased. Just so with man. Confined as the average man is to the daily routine of life, the blood becomes impoverished and he feels 'out of sorts.' Man was made to conform to the natural laws of the universe, the elements were created to be used by him, and his system is so arranged that he receives benefit from the very air that surrounds him."

Many Evidences
"The playful child is an evidence that nature orders exercise. Exercise enables the blood to absorb nourishment from the food and air, and assists in the elimination of all waste and foreign matter from the body. But if the body is not intelligently exercised the expulsion of waste matter is retarded, the poison penetrates the system and disease germs find lodgment, rapidly undermining the health. Exercise is to the body what friction is to metal. The latter will rust if not used, the body will become diseased if not exercised. A systematic course of exercise either at home or in a gymnasium will do wonders for a man. Good health and good sense are two of life's greatest blessings."

MILTON CHURCH IS DEDICATED

Evangelical Lutherans Held Services in Their New Edifice Yesterday.

The new Evangelical Lutheran church in Milton was dedicated Sunday morning, the sermon being preached by the Rev. J. C. Spilman, of Edgerton. This afternoon the Rev. A. F. Nicholas, of Fort Atkinson spoke in German. In the evening the Rev. R. H. Thiele, of Manchester delivered a sermon in English. Free will offerings were taken at all the meetings and a large sum realized towards paying the indebtedness on the church. The Rev. H. Odne, of Whitewater, serves as pastor in addition to his work as pastor of the church of his own city.

Attention A. O. U. W.

I now ask all members of the A. O. U. W., both old and young, who are interested in the future welfare of the order, to meet me at East Side Odd Fellows' hall on Friday evening, Oct. 9th at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of listening to a full explanation of the new rating lately adopted by the grand lodge of Wisconsin. Past Supreme Master Workman W. A. Walker will be present to answer any and all questions pertaining thereto. No matter if come of you have made up your minds to drop out, come and hear the facts talked and I am satisfied you will be interested. I am told that some of our competitors and some of our old members are circulating stories detrimental to the order. Now brothers, I feel that it is not willfully done, but simply because you do not understand the situation. Take my advice to come out to the meeting on Oct. 9th and I believe you will go home feeling that the old order is, and will be, stronger and better than ever before. Don't fail to be there. J. M. MARVIN WELCH DIES SUDDENLY

WELL KNOWN JANESVILLE YOUNG MAN TAKES HIS LIFE.

A HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATE

He Was Employed by the Bell Telephone Company When the Sad Occurrence Happened.

Word was received in Janesville yesterday of the suicide of Marvin J. Welch, son of Mrs. Edward Welch of 165 North High street, of this city, in Indianapolis. According to press dispatches Welch and a companion named Williamson, blew out their brains within five hours of each other in Indianapolis, where both were employed in the auditor's office of the Bell Telephone company. No reason is known for the act as the telephone company is sure the accounts handled by both young men were in the best of order. Welch had been sick for some days, but was out of his room on Friday and with Williamson purchased a cheap revolver. He was to have gone to work this morning.

Mother Notified
Mrs. Welch was notified of her son's death by a long distance telephone message and left at once for Indianapolis. Young Welch was educated in Janesville and graduated from the Janesville high school. He had been employed at the Field museum in Chicago for some time previous to his going to Indianapolis. The telephone officials speak in the highest terms of Mr. Welch and the theory is advanced that he committed suicide while brooding over his recent illness.

Well Known Here
Marvin Welch was the grandson of the late Marvin G. Hodges, who was for many years the Baptist minister of this city. His father was Edward F. Welch who lived in Janesville for some time. Two brothers survive him, Ray Welch, who lives in New York; and Harry, who lives in Brooklyn, this state. Mr. Welch has visited in the city many times since he left here and his many friends are horror stricken over his untimely end.

TWELVE DROWN IN GREEN BAY STEAMER FOUNDERS AT NIGHT

Caught in the Terrific Gale, the Erie L. Hackley Turns Turtle and Passengers Are Drawn Under by Suction of Sinking Ship.

Marquette, Wis., Oct. 5.—In the furious gale which swept over Green Bay Saturday night the passenger steamer Erie L. Hackley foundered and twelve persons were drowned. Nine survivors of the shipwreck were rescued Sunday by the steamer Sheboygan of the Goodrich line after they had floated for many hours on pieces of wreckage in a heavy sea that threatened to sweep them from their frail rafts.

The survivors were almost dead of exposure when they were picked up by the crew of the Sheboygan, and for a time they were unable to tell of the disaster. The pieces of wreckage on which they had floated nearly all night were small and every sea washed completely over them. Several women who had managed to seize bits of wood when the Hackley went down were washed from their improvised life preservers and drowned.

List of the Dead.
Lawrence Barringer, Fish Creek, Wis.
Edna Barringer, Fish Creek, Wis.
Joseph Vorus, captain of the Hackley, Fish Creek, Wis.
N. Fitzsimmons, Jacksonport, Wis.
Carl Kelly, Fish Creek, Wis.
George Le Clair, Jr., Jacksonport, Wis.
Nels Nelson, Sturgeon Bay, Wis.
Henry Rahitoy, Fish Creek, Wis.
Freeman Thorp, Fish Creek, Wis.
Truchly, cook of the Hackley.
Miss Frances Vincent, Egg Harbor, Wis.
Sister of Miss Vincent, Egg Harbor, Wis.

Vessel Rolls Over.
The storm which sent the Hackley to the bottom is the worst which has been recorded in this vicinity for years. The steamer was seven miles from Green Island when it broke, and warned by the threatening clouds, the captain was hastening to get his boat under the shelter of the island. The first blast of the gale was so fierce that the upper works of the steamer were torn off. The passengers were in the cabin, but at the sound of the breaking timbers they ran on deck. A frantic search for life preservers began, but before any could be secured the second burst of wind rolled the steamer over until the water poured into the hold through the cabin doors. Again the wind caught the steamer, this time full on its side, rolling the boat completely over. It sank instantly.

Captain Dies at Post.
A number of those lost were carried under by the suction of the sinking boat, and, it is believed, did not come to the surface again. Capt. Vorus remained in the pilot house trying to head the steamer into the wind, and went down with the ship. The wind, which continued with almost the force of a hurricane, caused a heavy sea to spring up immediately. In the darkness and the pouring rain which accompanied the wind it was impossible to see, and the stronger swimmers were unable to render aid to those who were struggling near them. The wind drove them farther apart, so that the cries of the drowning were lost.

Crew to the Rescue.
When the Sheboygan reached the vicinity of the wreck the lookout heard a hail from the water almost under the steamer's bow. He saw a man on a piece of wreckage and a lifeboat was lowered. After a hard pull in the heavy sea the crew of the lifeboat succeeded in getting him on board. This man was nearly dead, but he managed to tell enough of the disaster to start the steamer on a long search over the surrounding water. Eight others were picked up, and after several hours spent in steaming around it was thought certain that every one of the passengers and crew of the Hackley who had remained afloat had been rescued.

In order to procure medical aid for the shipwrecked persons the Sheboygan put into Fish Creek, the nearest port, and there landed the survivors. Tugs were sent out at once to continue the search in the hope that others might have remained afloat.

We Paid $100,000

For Liquezone—Yet We Give You a 50c. Bottle Free.

This company, after testing Liquezone for two years in the most difficult germ diseases, paid $100,000 for the United States' rights. That is by far the highest price ever paid for similar rights on any scientific discovery.

We publish this fact to show you the value of Liquezone. The most worthless product may have great claims made about it; but men don't pay a price like that save for a discovery of remarkable worth to humanity.

Kills Inside Germs.

Liquezone alone kills germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. It is so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1,000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. Liquezone destroys at once and forever the cause of any germ disease.

And there is no other way to do it. Any drug that kills germs is a poison to you, and it cannot be taken internally. Liquezone alone can attack a trouble that is caused by inside germs; and it cures diseases which medicine never cured.

Liquid Oxygen.

Liquezone is simply liquid oxygen—no drugs, no alcohol in it. It is the discovery of Pauli, the great German chemist, who spent 20 years on it. His object was to get such an excess of oxygen in staple

IN ANCIENT POMPEII

BELIEF THAT CHRISTIANITY HAD REACHED THERE.

Plausible Arguments Put Forth, Based by Discoveries of Works of Art Seem to Prove Their Presence in the Roman City.

(Special Correspondence.)

Were there Christians residing in Pompeii at the period of its destruction? Or, rather, are there any evidences or remains which would lead people to accept this probability?

What might, at first sight, appear to furnish a substantial proof of the presence of Christians in Pompeii was the discovery of a terra cotta lamp adorned with a cross, which was found there. But Garucci, the eminent antiquarian and writer on Christian art, demonstrated that this lamp could not justly be attributed to a date earlier than the fourth or fifth century of the Christian era, and could not, therefore, be of any value one way or another, and must have belonged to persons who were excavating or searching for treasures in Pompeii about that period.

There are several plausible reasons for conjecturing that Christianity might have reached Pompeii. In the Acts of the Apostles it is related that when St. Paul was on his way to Rome, in consequence of his appeal to Caesar, he landed at Puteoli, the modern Pozzuoli, where he was met by Christians, "brethren," who desired him to tarry with them some days. The distance between Pozzuoli and Pompeii is about thirty miles. It is not unreasonable, therefore, to expect that, if there were Christians in Pozzuoli, when St. Paul landed at it, there might well be Christians in Pompeii during the twenty years that elapsed between that date and the destruction of it in A. D. 79. Christianity made rapid strides, and it is quite natural to think it reached Pompeii, thirty miles from Pozzuoli, within the space of twenty years.

The most interesting, and, indeed, the most remarkable of discoveries, more or less associated with this subject, was that made in June, 1882, a fresco in which what seems the "Judgment of Solomon" is clearly represented, though the figures are dwarfs. When it was brought to light it was described as the first representation of a sacred subject yet found in Pompeii. It was transferred at once to Naples museum, where it may now be seen. It is 5 feet 6 inches in length by 19 inches high, and is surrounded by a black line about one inch in width.

"The scene," wrote Mr. E. Neville Rolfe, the British consul at Naples, who was, I believe, the first to make its discovery known to the English-speaking world, "the scene is laid upon a terrace in front of a house adorned with creeping plants and shaded with a white awning. On a dais, represented as being about four feet high, sits the king, holding a scepter, and robed in white. On each side of him sits a councillor, and behind them six soldiers under arms. The king is represented as leaning over the front of the dais toward a woman in a green robe, who kneels before him with disheveled hair and outstretched hands.

"In the center of the court is a three-legged table, like a butcher's block, upon which lies an infant, who is held in a recumbent position, in spite of his struggles, by a woman wearing a turban. A soldier in armor, and wearing a helmet with a long red plume, holds the legs of the infant, and is about to cleave it in two with his falchion. A group of spectators completes the picture, which contains in all nineteen figures. The drawing is poor, but the colors are particularly bright, and the preservation is excellent."

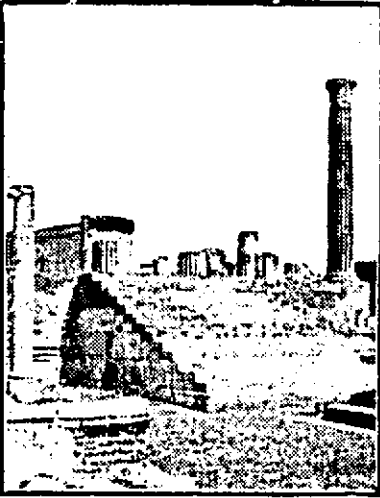

How such a subject came to be represented here is a puzzle. Italian archaeologists, said a writer, are generally inclined to think that the biblic-her arms, and a man by her side, in which some see a representation of "The Flight into Egypt." If such be the subject of this early fresco, it is by some centuries the earliest representation in art, so far as is yet known, of that memorable event; and it is evident that the work must have been produced at a comparatively short time after the event it commemorates, at a time indeed when the story of it might be told by contemporaries.

The tendency of the evidence derived from these discoveries made at long intervals of time, taken in conjunction with the great probability that Christianity had reached Pompeii some years prior to the destruction of that city, is all towards furnishing an affirmative answer to the question, Were there Christians in Pompeii?

Of the other people of Pompeii we know much. It is no exaggeration to say that of all the ancient cities of the earth no one has revealed so much of its inner life and manners and customs, its vices and its arts, its beliefs and its costumes, and all that can be known, as Pompeii.

Here on one side we wander into the Temple of Venus, where the worship of that deity prevailed; and we pass into the semi-ruined amphitheater, once clamorous with the shouts of maddened multitudes, now abandoned and silent save for its marvelous echo.

The empty houses, with the painted columns, rising into the blue air, and now supporting nothing, for the roofs are gone, make the place desolate and lonely to the sensitive mind. Yet there is a joy in wandering in and out of these residences now in ruins, once so elegant and refined, and so rich in works of art, such as the house of Castor and Pollux. The house of the Vetti, a recently excavated dwelling restored in accordance with the ancient style of construction employed in the city, and with nearly all its paintings and statues and gardens, just as they were eighteen centuries ago, is one of the most interesting spectacles that the past has bequeathed to the present.

Temples, too, there are in abundance, and no end of gods and goddesses, and demigods and fauns and satyrs and heroes. The very ceremonies of sacrifice are made familiar to us by paintings, which are contemporary works, and show the actual scene.

Then of the people we learn much. In the museum at Pompeii a model of the actual body of the dead Pompeian is seen who in his flight on the dreadful day of the eruption fell and was covered with ashes, leaving in decay a mold of himself, which has afterwards been filled with plaster of paris and forms his statue. These, there are several of them, are the most lifelike representation it is possible to imagine. They express in face and attitude—the arm covering the mouth as if to avoid the mephitic vapors—the agony of the death they suffered. They furnish an eloquent testimony to the horrors of the destruction of Pompeii.

Made of Milk.

At the hygienic milk supply exhibition, which was lately held at Hamburg, were exhibited a number of objects which seemingly had nothing whatever to do with hygienic milk supply. There were combs seemingly made of horn; cigar holders with amber colored mouthpieces, knives and forks with handles similar in appearance to ebony, ferrules for umbrellas and sticks, and balls, rings, chess figures, dominoes, etc. These objects were made of "galalith"—i. e., milk stone—and casein, the principal albuminoid substance of skimmed milk, is the raw material out of which galalith is made.

The Bird of Paradise.

Probably no famous bird has a smaller habitat than the bird of paradise, whose beautiful feathers are so highly prized in the millinery trade. No one knows why the varieties of this beautiful bird are confined to the island of New Guinea and the neighboring coasts of Australia. There are many islands not far away where the conditions would seem to be equally favorable to their existence, but they are not found among them.

A Becoming Hat

It is ridiculous to think that the same style of Derby or Soft Felt Hat will look well on every man, but some hat-makers would almost try to make you think so, so small is their variety.

We decided to carry such a great assortment of brim widths, crown heights and shapes this season, that every man who cares to come to this store, can be perfectly suited with a stylish, becoming and comfortably-fitting hat and at a moderate price; in fact, you will save from $1 to $2 on your hat here.

Fashionable Derbys and Alpines, $2, $3 and $3.50

Tailored Suits & Cloaks

We delayed ordering Suits and Cloaks as long as possible so as to be sure and have the right styles and can safely recommend our Suits and Cloaks as strictly the very latest. Looking is necessary to get posted. We would be pleased to have you call and see our new showings.

BON TON DISPLAY

We have a special display of late models in Bon Ton corsets in our window this week. The Bon Ton corsets are made by the Royal Worcester Corset Co. The latest styles in Royal Worcester and Bon Ton Corsets can be found at The Big Store. Special orders taken for any styles in the Royal Blue Book not carried in stock. It would seem that any woman could be fitted from such a great variety of shapes as those shown in the Royal Blue Book. We are continually getting in new styles in corsets made by the Royal Worcester Corset Co.

CLOAKS

Our styles will appeal to any woman as being entirely new and our prices reasonable.

cal narrative had penetrated into Pompeii; Jews from Alexandria, dwelling in a Roman city, must have possessed the Septuagint translation of the Bible. And Niccolo Lazzaro of Naples declares that the facts of the Old Testament were unknown to the pagans, because they were jealously guarded by the Israelites, and they have come down to us by the transformation of Judaism into Christianity.

Of another fresco, discovered at the same time as the "Judgment of Solomon," less has been said, though it has an importance. In a house in one of the narrower streets of Pompeii, in the quarter supposed to have been inhabited by the primitive Christians, there is also a fresco of a woman riding on an ass, with an infant in
